This Store Is Headquarters

For All that Is New and Useful.

We keep abreast of the times. When you see anything new in our line advertised come to our store and you find it here.

We test and try out the new things before we offer them for sale. They must have genuine merit and be all the makers claim before we recommend them.

And back of the maker's Guarantee is our Guarantee. We make good every promise.

We have seldom sold anything that gives more satisfaction than the O-Cedar Polish Mop. Every woman who has ever used one is enthusiastic in her praise. And no wonder, for it saves hard work, time and money.

You know the hard work of dusting, cleaning and polishing floors. It is easy, simple and quick with the O-Cedar Polish Mop. This mop is treated with the famous O-Cedar Polish and it collects all the dust and dirt from the floor, and at the same time gives it a hard, lasting polish. No hard rubbing, no stooping or bending. You just go over the floor once.

And with the same mop you can dust everywhere. All the hard-to-get-at places, the tops of doors, the moulding, the stairs and banisters. Under the bed and stoves, in fact every place.

Guaranteed Satisfaction or Money Refunded.

The O-Cedar Polish Mop, complete, sells for $1.50 and with this distinct understanding, that you can try it for two days and at the end of that time, if you are not perfectly satisfied with it your money will be instantly refunded. We invite you to try one.

Local and General

There are some people who are mighty careless about throwing old truck into the alleyways. Such people should be taught a little civic pride by a modest fine.

The citizens of any prosperous town are always public spirited and united. Stand together, work for the interests of the whole town. Always stand ready to do your part.

A Meeting of Stallion Owners will be held in the Fire Hall, Crossfield, on Saturday, the 28th March, for the purpose of forming a Horse Breeders Association. The Meeting is called for 10 a.m.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Walsh, of Calgary, came up for their niece's wedding at Sampsonston.

Mr. Johnson, who hails from Minnesota, brother-in-law to Mr. C. Hultgren, has been visiting for the past week or so. He returns home in a few days, and is thinking of returning shortly and taking up his residence in this district.

KYANIZE your home and so make it beautiful. Get it at McRory's.

Fred Turnbull, of Cremona, is spending a few days in town.

The U.F.A., unloaded another car of cereals during the past week.

K. Neil, who formerly worked for the C.P.R. here passed through last Monday on his way to Brooks, where he has a position with the same company.

Rumor has it that two of the Implement firms in town are disposing of their businesses, and we understand on good authority that they will be amalgamated and run under one management in future.

See the FIRECO Stove attachment at W. McRory and Sons.

An exchange makes the following pertinent comment: A farmer who was carrying an express package from a city mail order house, was accosted by a local merchant: "Why didn't you buy those goods from me? I could have saved you the express and besides you would have been patronizing a home store, which helps pay the taxes and build up this locality." With characteristic frankness, the farmer asked: "Why didn't you patronize your home paper and advertise? I read it and didn't know you had the goods I have here, nor do I ever see your name in the paper inviting one to come to your store."

If you require to renew your old Loan or take out a new one, call and see me, as I can save you money. I represent the N. of Scotland Can. Mortgage Co., The Canada Life, and others.

Chas. Hultgren.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE.

The Regular Meeting of the Women's Institute will take place on the afternoon of Saturday, April 4th, at 3 o'clock. The program will be as follows:

3. Instrumental duet: Misses Aylward and Beveridge.

The Ladies of the Institute are very much pleased over a donation of Ten dollars from the Agricultural Society towards their New Library Fund, and wish to express their thanks for the same. It is certainly gratifying to know that they have the sympathy of the community in this undertaking.

WOMAN
GREAT SUFFERER

Tells How She Was Restored
To Health by Lydia E.
Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Tilbury, Ont.—"I could praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound all around the world because it has done so much for me. For two years I was so run down that I was unable to do my own work. I had female weakness and dread-ful periods, constipation and headache, but now I am well off all these things. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Are not Mrs. Dickinson's symptoms those of any run-down, worn-out woman? They are also the symptoms of kidney disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills give new life to run-down women by curing their kidneys."

Case of Mrs. Tully.
Chicago, Ill.—"I take pleasure in writing to thank you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered with such awful periods, pain, and had a displacement, and received no benefit from the doctors. I was advised to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and am now as well as ever."—Mrs. WILLIAM TULLY, 2022 Ogden Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Knee Joint Stiff Three Years

CURED BY NERVILINE

Anyone would marvel at my recovery, writes Mr. Leonard Lotham, a young man from about Chablis, I had inherited a rheumatic tendency through my mother's family, and in my early days suffered frightfully. About three years ago the pain and stiffness settled in my left knee joint. I was lame and walked with a very distinct limp. Nerviline was brought to my notice and I rubbed it a day. It dispelled every vestige of pain, reduced the swelling, took out the stiffness, and gave me the full use of my limb again. I don't believe there is a pain-reducing remedy, not a single liniment that can compare with Nerviline. I hope every person with pains with sore back, with lameness, with lumbago, with rheumatism, I do hope they will try out Nerviline which I am convinced will quickly and permanently cure them."

Out of the Mouths of Babies
Little boy, said the minister. I hope you do not read those wicked dime novels. Not me, replied the wise youngster. I know better, to get worse ones for a nickel.

Mamma—Now, John, you should be polite and offer grandma a share of your birthday candy. Depford as a monument of the voyage and served far into the next century as a holiday resort, a Mecca for the people proud of their country's history, journeyed, paring their penicils to see the Great Drake's ship.

CAUGHT COLD IN WOUND

It may be only a scratch or cut to begin with, but the deadly germs set into it and soon you are a victim of blood-poisoning. You say you caught cold in the wound, and it festered. Now it is red and fiery, and threatens serious trouble.

You can never estimate what it is worth to have Dr. Chase's Ointment at hand all the time to apply in such cases of emergency. The most important thing in this ointment is to prevent blood-poisoning. It depresses the nerves, upsets the small arteries and veins and stops bleeding. By its antiseptic influence it keeps out the poisonous germs and heals up the wound.

Dr. Chase's Ointment quickly soothes itching and burning and seems to heal more quickly than anything that has been discovered. As a cure for eczema it has never been rivalled, and what more severe test could you apply. To try Dr. Chase's Ointment is to prove its unusual merit and to keep it always at hand for instant use.

His Speech
There are some parts of your speech that I find hard to understand.

Point 'em out, replied the great statesman, and I'll rewrite the other portions. I intended the entire speech to be that way.

How far back can you remember, Elmer? asked the inquisitive caller. Oh, ever so far, replied the latter fellow. I can remember when I was so little that I couldn't remember anything.

Hard on Artist
D'auher—I have come to the conclusion that art doesn't pay. Wits—I don't know about art, but I know lots of artists who don't.

Left Out
Tommy had been naughty, and during the day his mother had to punish him. That night, while saying his prayers at his mother's knee he said: Lord bless papa, sister and grandma. Amen!

Then, turning to his mother, he said: Did you notice you weren't in it?

Elmer—I do hope Grace will marry Eugeneally. Clara—Why? Elmer—It will take a thoroughly sound boob to survive her cooking and plain playing.

In the case of an outburst the average man feels that he has performed his whole duty when he has written to the papers about it.

THE SILVERMEADE HUNT

Winning the Prize in an Unexpected Manner.

By CONSTANCE D'ARCY MACKAY

It was a clear, bracing day toward the 1st of November, and from the hill which was crested by the old Lauderdale mansion could be seen a sweep of country touched by varying colors—the russet and crimson of oak and maple, the green of undulating fields and hills broken here and there by the gray of stone walls, the clear flashes of brooks or stretches of open water.

"What ails!" cried Gratia Richards, tossing back her head and taking a long whiff.

"And what a day for a hunt!" echoed Rex Tellingford, looking past Richards to where Emily Lauderdale was chattering to a group of men in red coats, checking in her horse as the hounds struggled to get off, straining at their leashes. "With every one in such good luck it ought to be a great old race," she laughed, tucking a strand of blue black hair beneath her riding hat.

The eyes of Richards and Tellingford met with an understanding gleam. Rich was cognizant of the other's thoughts—that whenever brought back the brush that day would win a prize of far greater value. Both men knew that their future happiness depended largely on the money which Emily Lauderdale, who was a horsewoman from the tip of her riding boots to the ends of her firm gauntleted fingers, set immeasurably above by cross country riding, long leaps and halfbreed endurance. To say a man could not keep his saddle was akin to Emily's mind to saying he could not keep his head.

"Though I think there are virtues equally as great as cross country riding," smiled Kate Elizabeth Lauderdale, whose love of outdoor life and sport was neither so deep rooted nor of such long inheritance as Emily's.

Emily shook her head.

"Dear Aunt Kate," she answered, "you don't in the least understand, and I'm sure I could never explain. It's bred in my bone, that's all. If I had lived in the olden days, I should have had a tournament—running of horses, clashing of spears, splintering of armor! That's what I call a 'roving'! No mere ambling up to demand your heart and hand! And, as I find it hard to decide between Gratia Richards and Rex Tellingford, I have decided to let fate decide, and let the best man win."

Something of this headstrong resolution stirred in the girl as she turned suddenly in her saddle and glanced at the two men. Assured triumph gleamed on the face of Richards, whose determination was written on Tellingford's. She gave a little nod of satisfaction. They were well matched, these two.

The other needed no explanation. The Lauderdale house party were not unaware of the drama that was being played before their eyes, and it added to the zest of the morning as the signal was given, the dogs unleashed and the cavalcade swept gracefully down the hill.

"Look at that!" cried the boy, Royce Tellingford, a service, who pointed to her saddle. "She's actually!" But the rest was lost, for Emily was already in the distance, galloping at breakneck speed, while at her heels followed Richards and Tellingford. The mare's feet seemed to churn like a winged creature. Tellingford was not so fortunate. At the brink of a stream he was forced to pause and fasten his saddle girths. "Farty from excitement and going from a gallop," he fumbled with it longer than he had intended, and when he raised his head the others were already far ahead. Emily Lauderdale and her horse were still in the lead. The hounds had scented their quarry and were in full cry.

Tellingford crossed the stream, was a croquet that he had tried once before. It lay through ditches and brambles and was intersected by five bar fences. Still, anything at a gallop, he was back Tellingford against every mare in the county. He congratulated himself on this decision some moments later as Fleetfoot reared back at a pace that justified her name. Her course now lay across wide meadows filled with high grass and starred here and there by purple asters and blue flowers by low stone walls in whose crumbling crevices vines twisted and arched, climbing like squirrels skipped and chattered.

"Bravo, old girl!" cried Tellingford, his hand on Fleetfoot's glossy neck, gently urging her forward, so that the moment there reached him sharply and piercingly the bitter cry of a child.

Tellingford drew rein. By the wall, clinging a ditch that Fleetfoot was about to take, lay a small, chubby figure, one hand full of flowers. "Picked himself up," he bawled, "thought Tellingford! Aloud he said: 'Cheer up, sonny! Men never cry for a scratch.' He was for urging Fleetfoot on again when the hounds of the little heap by the wall came home to him. He checked his horse and dismounted. An instant later he stood with the hounds bawling in his arms. The child's yellow head reared against his shoulder. One small arm hung limp across his own. With an understanding almost human, Fleetfoot stood by the wall like a bronze statue while Tellingford mounted and then went slowly back across the meadows toward the road. The child, recovering from his stupor, began to sob. Tellingford soothed him with tender awkwardness and was guiding Fleetfoot to the first farmhouse by the roadside when a woman ran down the path leading to the road, uttering her check upon as she went. Her back was toward the approaching trio.

"Bobby," she cried, "Bobby!" The boy stirred in Tellingford's arms. "I think I have found your boy, madam," called Tellingford gently and in three seconds more was speeding for the village physician. The sounds of the hunt had long since died in the distance.

It was afternoon when Tellingford reached the Lauderdale. From the dining room came sounds of talking and, in the hall he met Emily Lauderdale. There was a look on her face that he had never seen before. "I'm awfully sorry," he began, abruptly, "but the cow you were riding was in his hand, but you see—He paused and could go no further. He was a man who always found it easy to tell the good deeds of other people, but he miserably when it came to the recital of his own. He muttered something inarticulate about loose stones, a horse and a bad fall.

Emily Lauderdale surveyed him with cool scorn. "For a muddy fall your coat is the most completely spoiled garment that I have ever seen," she returned dryly.

"Oh, I say," began Tellingford, but Emily swept past him, her hand held high. That he had not cared to win was evident, but that he should admit to that humiliation with excuses was more than she could bear. She was glad, she told herself, that it was Gratia Richards who had come off triumphant. Yet in spite of this gladness there was a sting in her eyes and a bitter catch in her throat as she sat before her dressing table that night while Katie, the maid, brushed her hair.

Everything had gone wrong that day in big things as well as in little. Even the gown she had planned to wear that evening had been left untied, and she was forced to represent Katie somewhat shapely.

"So one day," said he, "and I'm going to leave!" The farmer was astounded.

"Surely," said he, "you're not going to leave me after all these years?"

"Yes, but I am," retorted Sam. "I've done every kind of rotten job on this here farm, but I'd rather take my chance with you than stay here!"—London Answer.

Origin of Shavings. It has been conjectured that the practice of shaving originated from its being found that the beard afforded too much protection to the face in battle. This is the cause assigned for the origin of shaving among the Greeks about the year 400 B.C. In other countries the practice was first adopted by military men. Historians mention the alarm in which some Roman emperors lived because of the fear that their barbers might cut their throats. For the sake of concealing a scar on his throat the Emperor Hadrian was a beard. This fact brought the custom again into fashion.

Old London Bookshops. Just within the gateway of Gray's Inn, London, is the greatest curiosity of the inn—the famous old bookshop of Jacob Tonson, the first publisher which is now the head porter's lodge. The shop is the first of the first edition of "Bacon's Two Books of the Proficiency and Advancement of Learning" (1605).

STRANGE SEA TREASURE.

Ambergris Is One of the Most Prized Products of the Deep.

A piece of ambergris estimated to be worth about $160,000, recently brought into Victoria, B.C., was declared to be one of the largest and most valuable of this strange sea treasure ever found.

Because of its great value, the infrequency with which it is found and the mystery which long existed as to its origin ambergris from the earliest times has been regarded as one of the most prized products of the deep. It is a solid, fatty, inflammable substance, generally of a gull gray or blackish color, and possessing after exposure to the air a peculiarly sweet, earthy odor. Ambergris is now known to be a morbid secretion formed in the intestines of the sperm whale, but for centuries it was variously believed to be the solidified foam of the sea, fungoid marine growth, gum which exuded from the trees and flowed into the ocean, or by-product of bird life.

Ambergris occurs in lumps of various shapes and sizes from half an ounce to 150 pounds or more. When first taken from the whale it throws off a very strong and often disagreeable smell, but it gradually loses this until it gives way to a subtle aroma, said by some writers faintly to suggest the odor of amber. Although its most sole use today is the making of perfume, ambergris was for centuries highly esteemed as a medicine for certain diseases, and it was long used in the sacred rites of the church and in connection with fragrant gums burned in the apartments of royalty.

All seafaring men are constantly on the lookout for ambergris, yet many whaling ships in fifty years of experience have never come across a quarter ounce of the substance. The amount of ambergris produced annually from all sources varies greatly, and is seldom found in great quantities, while in other a single chunk worth $100,000 and more may be brought in by a single haul.

What is undoubtedly the most valuable lot ever secured up to recent date was a mass of 165 pounds obtained in 1891, and was finally sold in London for about $50,000. For trade reasons details as to its finding and where it was found are kept in deep secrecy. One of the most valuable pieces of ambergris ever received by America was taken in 1894 from a whale near the Cape Verde Islands. It weighed 109 pounds and sold for about $35,000. The best prices bringing $250 a pound.

There the Egnogard Belked. Sam had worked on the farm for nine years, and until his master took to poultry farming he was quite satisfied.

But this poultry business was a bit too much. He had to take the eggs and the chickens and the little on them with an indelible pencil. And worse than that, he had also to write on the back of the breed of the hen that laid them.

"So one day he marched up to the farmer."

"I'm fed up," said he, "and I'm going to leave!"

The farmer was astounded.

"Surely," said he, "you're not going to leave me after all these years?"

"Yes, but I am," retorted Sam. "I've done every kind of rotten job on this here farm, but I'd rather take my chance with you than stay here!"—London Answer.

THE GAME OF FIRST AID.

Contests to Develop Skill in Treating Mine Accident Victims.

A new kind of contest of skill that has been started in open air tournaments, its competing teams, its cups and its champions and even perhaps its bitter rivalries and jealous rivalry bids have swept over the coal mining sections of the United States in the past two years, though up to the present it is practically unheard of in large parts of the country.

First aid is the name of the new sport, the competing teams demonstrating their knowledge of how to meet emergencies of accidents in coal mines.

Sets of rules have been generally agreed on and officially promulgated by a national organization, so a team from New Mexico could compete with teams from other parts of the country, for instance, and know the conditions to be met as well as a western folk team knows the conditions to be met in a game with an eastern college.

Each team consists of a captain and four men and usually another man for a volunteer. At the tournaments each team, in turn, shows how it would meet some accident described by the judges.

At a recent New Mexico contest, for instance, each team was told to proceed on the assumption that a fall of rock in a coal mine had broken the gas and miner and had nearly filled the passageway with loose rock.

The subject represented the injured miner, and each team was to provide first aid for a fractured thigh, improvised a stretcher and carried him to safety through the low passageway over the fallen rock, represented by some loose logs, and with strings to mark the walls and roof of the passageway—Saturday Evening Post.

ANTARCTIC FORESTS.

The Frigid South Pole Zone Burned with the Forests of the Tropics.

Probably the most interesting of the Scott antarctic expedition specimens which have just been placed in the National Museum at Washington, are the few pieces of coal found by Captain Scott's party in latitude 88 degrees, in the middle of the frozen plateau that stretches from King Edward's Land way beyond the south pole.

The coal was found by Commander Evans among the little fragments of fossils which Captain Scott and his three companions dragged through the blizzard with their other baggage on their sledges, during their journey which cost them their lives. The few tiny fragments, under the light of science, tell a wonderful story.

If it is true, as these specimens strongly indicate, that there is coal at the south pole, it follows that at some remote time there must have been forests growing in this frozen, ice-covered land. Stored up in the little bits of coal is the heat from a tropical sun which was once shed over the hills and fertile valleys of King Edward's Land, now a desolate ice waste—London Philadelphia Ledger.

Paper Cansons Now.

London Tilt-Bits describes a project for the most remarkable of all uses of paper—its use as a substitute for steel in a certain kind of cannon.

The famous Krupp works in Germany have already manufactured some of these paper cannons. They are first pieces designed for the special use of infantry. Their caliber is the less than two inches, and they are made of a material so easily carried. The advantage of that facility of transportation are, of course, tremendous. And, strange as it may seem, the resistance of these paper guns is greater than that of steel of the same caliber.

The paper cannon are not intended to supplement those made of steel. They are merely for use in situations where the movement of heavy field artillery would be impracticable.

"What else have you got?" asked Cholly, looking languidly over the bill of fare for something to tempt his lady appetite.

"Well," replied the waitress, "we have hot biscuits, too."

"All right," said Cholly, resting his intellect by tossing the bill of fare aside. "Bring me a hot biscuit stew."

USEFUL AND PRETTY.

Just What the Housewife Will Like.

COKE BAG OF BLUE LINEN.

Coke is one of the little things one can never find when there is use for them. This little coke bag is the clever, or idea of an ingenious housekeeper who believes in a place for everything and everything in its place. The bag is built of blue linen, with a band of cretins as a decoration. To the end of the bag is attached a corkswear.

Homemade Flowerpot.

Flowerpots of any size or design may be made of plaster of paris in the following way: First secure a mold of the desired size. It must be smooth upon the outside and the top a little larger than the bottom. Grease the mold and cover it with paper. Mix plaster with a square of muslin that is one-half inch wide strips of muslin.

Invert the mold and cover the bottom with a square of muslin that has been dipped in the plaster mixture. Then, upon the same plan that a mason employs to adjust a plaster cast, begin to wind diagonally, around and around, working from bottom to top and then back again, smoothing out the creases and keeping the strips even. When the last layer is in place add a generous coating of the plaster, rubbing it level by the hand. Set in a strong current of air, and in a short time the mold can be removed.

The strips of muslin should be about ten inches long to manage easily, and the size of the pot will govern the number used, as a large one will require more in order to produce a heavier article.

The last coating can be stamped with any ornamental impression or beautifully marbled by dusting a little powdered ink upon it before finishing.

Have You a Sauter?

They formerly were known as jetonette ribbons, but now they are commonly called sauteres—the quarter inch wide bands in black grosgrain that comes in yard lengths and are joined under hook equipped slides matching other slides of slightly larger size. The smart auter is fitted with slides of bar, circle, diamond or crescent shape in solid silver or gold set with brilliants or pearls and is designed to match a tiny watch or a jewelry pendant, if jetonettes are not used.

For elderly women the smartest thing in sauteres is fitted with a slide in the shape of a watch. It is a watch, and to suspend from any shape in jets concealing a base of silver containing a vanity mirror.

By now more than a mile cord of yard length and of a brilliant shade of green, blue or red, supposed by the initiated to match the wearer's hosiery. Perhaps it does, but in any event it gives a fetching dash of color to the costume, and it serves to exhibit one of the new pear shaped pendants which come in pearls, rubies and brilliants—whichever one can afford.

First Woman on Stage.

It was in January, 1661, that according to Peppey Diary, women first appeared on the stage. Previously female parts had been played by young men and boys. This revolution came about because the Queen was Charles II, who had been kept waiting because "the Queen was not shaving." The merry monarch enjoyed the joke, but arranged that in future tragic queens should not wear razors.

WOMAN'S MOST SUCCESSFUL MEDICINE

Known All Over The World—Known Only For The Good It Has Done.

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or received so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In nearly every community you will find women who have been restored to health by this famous medicine. Almost every woman you meet knows of the good good it has been doing among suffering women for the past 30 years.

Fox Creek, N. B.—"I have always had pains in the abdomen and a weakness in my back, and often after meals a soreness in my stomach. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me much good. I am stronger, digestion is better and I can work with ambition. I have encouraged many mothers of families to take it as it is the best remedy in the world. You can publish this in the papers."—Mrs. WILLIAM S. BOURQUE, Fox Creek, N. B.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, many of whom state that it has saved them from surgical operations.

Put your Head to the North

Experiments are now being conducted at Columbia University to prove the proof of the theory that people who sleep with their heads pointing toward the North Magnetic Pole and their feet towards the south sleep more refreshed than those who sleep otherwise.

Do you sleep well?

Are you in perfect health?

If not you had better box the compass before retiring. Every man, woman and child in this broad land should turn his or her head around until the head points north and the feet south. Then only will his or her sleep be deep and sound as possible, all other things being equal. Then only will he or she arise with nerves rested and with proper tone to the entire body.

Nonsense, you say. Yet experiments at Columbia University seem to bear out this theory which is almost as old as the hills.

Dr. Walter J. Clarke, one of the best known exponents of the use of electricity, not only for the cure of diseases but for the soothing effect it has on overworked and tired nerves, is a firm believer of this theory.

The truth of this theory, which is a very old one, has been demonstrated thousands of times, says Doctor Clarke. But it is only just recently that scientific proof has been produced. We now understand why it is so. By electrical stimulation of the nerve fibres one can either rest them or make them healthy, if diseased. Many diseases that were formerly treated by the stinging of drugs are now cured by electricity. There is no doubt that sleeping with the head to the north is beneficial.

A Pleasant Purgative.—Parslee's Vegetable Pills are so compounded as to operate on both the stomach and the bowels, so that they act along the whole alimentary and excretory passages. They are not drastic in their work, but mildly purgative, and the pleasure of taking them only is equalled by the gratifying effect they produce. Compounded only of vegetable substances the curative qualities of which were fully tested, they afford relief without chance of injury.

TAKEN HOME ON A MATTRESS

How A Sufferer From Sciatica Found Permanent Relief.

Pierce darting pains, pains like red hot needles being driven through the flesh in the thigh, perhaps down the legs to the ankles—that's sciatica. None but the victim can realize the torture of this trouble, and many suffer from it hopelessly in the belief that it cannot be cured. This is a mistake; sciatica is a nerve trouble, and if the starved nerves are properly nourished with rich, red blood the trouble will soon disappear. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make just the new, pure blood needed to feed the sciatic nerve and drive out the racking pain. It has been proved over and over again that they can do this and we offer now the following additional piece of evidence. Mr. H. H. Factorious, Harrow, Ont., says: "Some years ago I was terribly afflicted with sciatica, starting just in my hip and then extending through the leg to the foot. At the time I was attacked I was away from home and had to be brought home on a mattress in a spring wagon, and the agony of the trip was almost more than I could endure. Reaching home I was not able to sit up and remained in bed for six weeks. The doctor did not help me and I tried a number of medicines recommended by neighbors. I paid $5.00 a bottle for one preparation, but it was no better than the rest, and I began to think there was no cure for me. While suffering this untold misery Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended, and my wife got me a supply. In the course of a few weeks I began to feel better and could get around with the aid of a cane. I kept on taking the Pills until all the pain disappeared and I felt as well as ever I did. I have never had an attack of the trouble since, and although I am now 65 years of age I feel as alert as I did at 40, all of which I ascribe to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

If you are suffering from sciatica or any nerve or blood trouble, begin to cure yourself today by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which will actually do for you what they have done for others. If you give them a fair trial. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

She Wasn't Interested

The newly married couple sat close together by the fire in the drawing-room. Her head was pillowed on his shoulder, and he was in a state of sentimental ecstasy.

I have just been reading a book, he said, the sincerity and beauty of which are enchanting. It is a work of love—no trifling, no beautifully inspiring, so pure!

She looked at him with a faraway expression in her eyes. To him she seemed to be pondering every word and he was charmed. Then with a painful shock he was disillusioned. George, she exclaimed, shall we have the beef for dinner today cold, or shall I hash it?

Instead of "patching up" your house, repair for good with concrete

A FEW bags of "Canada" cement, some stone and sand and water, mixed and placed where needed, will make an old house look like new. What is more important, the improvements—the better porch floor, foundations, steps, chimney-caps, or column-bases—are made to last. Time, wear and weather have no effect upon concrete, except to make it stronger.

Even if you have never used concrete, you can quickly learn how from our 160-page book, "What the Farmer can do with Concrete"

Which we will send to you free upon request. It will show you how to build a concrete porch as well as how to use concrete for scores of other purposes around the house and on the farm.

OUR Free Information Book will answer any questions on the use of concrete without obligating you in any way.

Billy Unburdened His Guilty Conscience

By LILLIE WENTZ

"Tomorrow's a holiday, Aunt Molly," began Billy, perching himself on the arms of her chair.

"Isn't that Jolly?" returned pretty Miss Gale as she tumbled his curly hair. "Washington's birthday, eh? What are you going to do, dear?"

"That's for you to say," replied Billy, grinning. "Will you come over to the lake and skate with me, Aunt Molly?" "Oh, dear," cried Molly reprofully, and then Billy knew that Ned Hildred had asserted his rights as Molly's dance and that if Miss Gale went to skate with him it would be to skate with the handsome Ned and not with her nine-year-old nephew.

"I'm so sorry, Billy," faltered Molly at last. "You can come with me." Billy shook his head and slipped down from the chair.

"Two's company and three's none," he quoted gleefully as he went away.

"Poor little Billy" smiled Molly as she gazed after him with lovely, misty eyes. The tears soon cleared away, but the smile remained, for Molly was watching for Ned Hildred. He was going to take her out along the boulevard for a spin in his new car. The absence of snow and the crispness of the cold of the season would make the driving ideal.

Molly skipped away to the mirror and tried on the new fur motor bonnet that enhanced her delicate loveliness. Her face blushed rosily as her own eyes admired her fairness.

"Billy!" she chided herself, tossing the bonnet aside.

An hour passed by and then another. Ned Hildred did not come. The afternoon was drawing to a close when Billy came stamping in, a big book tucked under his arm. "He was going at a great clip up the avenue," "Did he see you, Billy, dear?" "Naw!" giggled Billy. "He didn't see neither but he!"

After that it was so still in the library that Billy crept to his own room, where he snuggled on the light, and planting himself in the middle of the bed, proceeded to eat peanuts and enjoy the youthful escapades of the father of his Country with equal enthusiasm.

Presently Molly entered upon her fur wraps and the charming bonnet and went slowly up the stairs to her own room. If she shed tears over Ned Hildred's rejection of one new toy for her as was sweetly serene as ever when the dinner bell rang.

"Of course you are going to the ball, Molly," observed Mrs. Moore as her sister sat down at table.

"I wouldn't miss it for anything!" cried Molly enthusiastically. "Certainly not with that dream of a gown waiting for me."

"That peach colored satin is the prettiest gown you ever had, Molly," put in Mr. Moore.

Molly flashed a smile at her brother-in-law. "Thank you, James. I can return the compliment by saying that the mulberry velvet is most becoming to you."

There was some gay chatter over the costumes for the Hildreds' column at that evening. Molly's punch sat in to be a surprise for Ned Hildred.

"Johnson says Hildred is to wear white satin as the lucky bridegroom," teased Mr. Moore as they arose from the table.

"Nonsense!" laughed Molly, blushing. Billy, sleepy and solemn even, suddenly endured Molly's good night kiss when she came to his bed in all the glory of the peach-colored satin.

"Good night, lover boy!" whispered Molly. But Billy turned a pink cheek away from her caress. "Will you be skating with me tomorrow?" she asked.

"Alone?" he questioned.

"Alone with me," said Molly, and she did not know her tone quavered.

"All right," growled Billy and kissed her sheepishly. "You look fine," he added.

Molly quite forgot Billy and his jealous heart by the time she reached the Biggys'.

But when Ned Hildred hurried up to her by incomparably handsome in white velvet and silver embroidery, Molly's color deepened and all softness vanished from her eyes.

"You haven't saved one for me?" he asked, his face quite white.

"So sorry," murmured Molly as she slipped away with her partner for the first walk.

Ned Hildred stared dumbly after lovely Molly. The exquisite strains of his walk wrung his heart.

Presently he went home. After that Molly's anxiety was entirely fictitious.

The next day it was a very pale and return. Molly who trembled over the snowy paths to Silver lake, Billy, trudging beside her with their skates swung over his shoulders, was a gleaming sight.

Once there among the crowd of merry skaters Molly recovered a degree of cheerfulness, but Billy's gloom deepened with each passing moment.

They had skated to a secluded part of the lake, where Molly sat down as a fallen log to rest.

"I'll go and buy some sandwiches, Aunt Molly," said Billy, turning away. "Very well, dear. Don't be long."

Billy raced back among the skaters. His bright eyes sought out Hildred's tall form.

"Oh, Mr. Hildred, please come to Aunt Molly right away; it's awful important!" quavered Billy, grasping the man's hand.

Hildred's one thought was that Molly had fallen through the ice. He uttered a strangled cry of alarm and started off, dragging the frightened Billy by one hand.

Breathlessly they dashed up to the spot where Molly sat, hesitantly upon her log. She started violently as they pounced to a standstill.

"Why, what is it?" she stammered indignantly.

"I-I beg your pardon," murmured Hildred with a furious glance at the writhed Billy. He lifted his cap and wheeled about.

"Wait a minute, please!" cried the small boy. "I've got something to say, and you both got to be here and listen."

"Billy Moore, what is it?" demanded Hildred with a furious glance at the writhed Billy. He lifted his cap and wheeled about.

"Wait a minute, please!" cried the small boy. "I've got something to say, and you both got to be here and listen."

Varieties of Grain Crops to Grow.

For twenty-six years the Dominion Experimental Farms have been experimenting with grain crops at the various farms and stations distributed over Canada trying to learn which varieties give best results in the different provinces. Not only have the best known sorts produced at other places been grown side by side but at the Central Farm at Ottawa new varieties have been bred, and when found desirable, perpetuated and distributed to growers.

For the information of the Canadian farmer the more important results of the season of 1913 at the different Farms have been put together in summarized form and issued in Bulletin No. 74. There are included in this some recommendations as to varieties to grow and methods of production to follow that should prove of great service to growers in all parts of Canada.

Referring to "Marquis" wheat which was bred at Ottawa the bulletin says,—"Marquis produces very large crops, has usually good straw and is more resistant to rust than most of the common varieties." A large edition of this bulletin has been printed so that all who desire copies may secure them by applying to the Publication Branch, Department of Agriculture at Ottawa.

A Pretty Wedding.

A very quiet but pretty home wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Walsh, on Sunday, March 22nd, when their eldest daughter Bernice was united in marriage to Mr. Louis McLaughlin. Only the near relations of the family were present. The bride was given away by her father, and was attended by her sister Miss Mary Walsh. The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Hiram Walsh.

The bride wore a handsome gown of white marquisette over silk and carried a pretty bouquet of white and pink carnations and mimosas. The bridesmaid looked very daintily in pale blue silk. An elegant wedding cake adorned the centre of the supper table which was decorated with cut flowers and ferns.

After the wedding the happy couple left for Calgary, where they will spend a short honeymoon before returning to their future home at Beaver Dam.

The bride's going away costume was of cinnamon brown, with hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin have the best wishes of their many friends both of Beaver Dam and Crossfield.

THE FARMERS' HARNESS STORE.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

We have decided to Discontinue the Repairing branch of our business at this time on account of seeding being near at hand, and also that our time is largely taken up with the selling of new goods throughout the country.

We shall continue to be at the BOUCCOCK BLOCK, one door south of Hislop's Store, Carstairs, every Saturday until further notice, and will also be in a position to devote more time to the Sale of New Goods at any time, and any place.

Should you require anything in our line, we will quote you very close prices. The phone will always catch us, or a message can be left at the farm.

E. B. SHANTZ, Salesman,
